ABSTRACT

In an attempt to document the inconsistency and complexity of bibliographic control of names of international conferences, this directory provides a list of variant names used by such organizations. Preceding the list is a presentation/discussion of the seven recommendations made by the IFLA Working Group on Corporate Headings in April 1977, to resolve this problem. The entries are arranged in Dewey Decimal order, and each name is tagged with a sequential number or date to indicate the changes it has undergone. The distribution of the types of namings analyzed in the collection (e.g., one name which never changes, two or more parallel names which alternate with acronyms) is displayed in a table, as are the frequencies of acronyms. All of the names recorded here were derived from publications used at the Royal Institute of Technology in Stockholm. (JD)

A report from the second IFLA Working Group on Corporate Headings Meeting, London, 26-28 April 1977 (1) has provided an occasion to update a previous inventory of the names of periodical international conferences (2) and to give comments on some of their recommendations.

I "It was agreed that the official name of a corporate body should be used in headings and that the full form of a name would be preferable."

The official names of periodical international conferences are not always very easy to decide upon. There should be issued some informations to the responsible organizers that the naming is important because international cataloguing rules consider meetings as corporate bodies having official names and that the present state of things creates great trouble for the recorders, users, and retrievers of their proceedings. These informations should be accompanied by some specifications for the presentation of conference proceedings like British Standard 4446:1969. If we must go on living with "the appalling inconsistency and complexity of presentation of such proceedings" (3) - there seems, however, to have been some change for the better - it will be necessary to create a special data base recording all the names, and that means all the real names, not those used in cataloguing, for this literature.

II "The Working Group considers that international standardization of the form and structure of corporate headings is essential, along with the use of authority files for the realization of the UBC programme."

For the creation of authority files an inventory of names and the presentation of proceedings might prove useful.

III "The cataloguer and bibliographer should not create names for unnamed groups."

2) Dahlström, A.: Periodiska internationella kongresser. En namntypsstudie (KTHB-K-21, 1973)
3) Gorman, M.: Library Association Record 70(1968)27-32

This excellent recommendation is supported by a strong opinion among cataloguing rules critics from Seymour Lubetzky (4) on. Only, what counts as "creating names"? Naming of the unnamed is common practice. With cataloguing rules that do not treat corporate bodies as authors names from source 3 (prefaces etc.) would not be used. Besides, can source 3 wording always be considered as recognized names?

IV "When there are official names in several languages, choose the name in one of these languages for the uniform heading."

Authority files will decide which. We cannot go on choosing English-language or other native language names as we please in shared cataloguing. With these itinerant congresses, the different national bibliographies involved will create options if unaware of UBC decisions in each case.

V "In choosing the uniform heading for a corporate body, prefer the form of name in use on the publications of the body. When variant forms of name are frequently used or when there is reason to doubt that the form of name used on the publication is the most widely used form, prefer the form of name found in established reference sources."

Very few of the periodical international conferences use one unchanging name on their publications. If we must establish the most widely used form, we are back to the ALA rules 1949, p. 133:

> "No definite decision as to the final best form of entry can be made until a considerable body of material has been assembled. In the meanwhile references must be relied upon to make the entries readily available."

Of the established reference sources, bibliographies present created names for unnamed groups, English or native language names (Statement of Principles 9.42), conventional names, modified forms, perpetuated names from earlier meetings, subject headings, form headings ("CONGRESSES") or other headings besides editors or sponsors. It can be foreseen that the different national bibliographies in charge of the publications of these multinational conferences will have great difficulties in assertaining the real names used on earlier publications in the suite especially when published in different periodicals and consequently not normally listed in national bibliographies.

VI "When among the variant forms, there is an initialism or acronym, prefer the full form, unless the acronym is more widely used internationally."

Nobody can deny that acronyms play a most conspicuous role in the conference world, delegates would not spell out in any case. Acronyms have been increasing in frequency also in this sphere.

VII "When a corporate body uses different names in successive periods, use these names as uniform headings, irrespective of whether there occurs a simultaneous organizational and constitutional change."

This is very good indeed, to put a stop to the prevalent perpetuation of earlier names in cataloguing. Happily, with the advent of the ISBD. there will be a better check on the true wording, and authority files observing changes of name forms will prevent people from perpetuating headings of their own choice. The amount to recatalogue will be dreadful.

The following analysis of a collection of periodical international conference proceedings (Appendix) is an attempt to map out the general structure, if there is one, of the naming and presentation. Because of incomplete files, of a limited subject area, and of the impossibility to check every item for accuracy, the conclusions may seem doubtful. But I hope it will give an approximate idea about the "inconsistency and complexity", the trends and fashions, the unpredictability and that there can be a comparison with how these publications are cited and catalogued in order to facilitate an assessment of whether the present recommendations will be sufficient to get this literature under universal bibliographic control. The conference names are only those on the respective publications, and that means all the names, including acronyms, taken from source 1-2, but not from source 3 of the ISBD(S), i.e. title page, title page verso, cover, spine, but not preface etc. All the changes ("congress of" - "congress on") have been considered as changes, with no kind of ISDS distinction.

The publications used are those at the Royal Institute of Technology Library. There are a great many incomplete suites. Supplementing from bibliographies would be no good because of reasons given above. The incomplete suites have been taken into account except the single meeting ones, of course, included only for a possible updating in the future. As "international" have been considered all conferences, or meetings of bodies, so named except the regional, stationary, national ones, also the European, Scandinavian, etc. The single entries are uncertain.

All the frequencies given (Table 1) are valid just now. It often happens that a previously regular series is transferred to group 3, which is totally irregular, and by far the biggest. In the list, for greater ease of reading, rearrangement has been made into name + sequential number or date.

Conclusions

Shared cataloguing of periodical international conference proceedings is absolutely feasible also if only the real names are recorded linked to an ISSN number. Collocation will be supplied by explanatory references from a special data base for the purposes of catalogues and bibliographies and by some kind of shelf number for shelving of what is not scattered in periodicals.

TABLE 1: Distribution of the types of namings in the collection analyzed

1.	Only one name which never changes	50 suites
2.	Only one name which changes	69 "
3.	Only one name which alternates with several	158 "
4.	Two or more parallell names which never change	19 "
5.	Two or more parallell names which change	11 "
6.	With book title, incl. book title as name	144 individual meetings
7.	With acronyms	163 "
8.	With 4 names	25 "
9.	With 5 names	10 "
10.	With 6 or more names	4 "

EXAMPLES

1. i.e. one permanent name. Example:
   International computing symposium. 1970, 1972, 1973, 1975

2. i.e. only one name, alternating. Example:
   International conference of tank superintendents. 1
   International conference on experiment tank work. 2
   Congrès international des directeurs de bassins. 3
   Internationale Tagung der Leiter der Schleppversuchsanstalten. 4
   International conference of ship tank superintendents. 5-6
   International conference on ship hydrodynamics. 7

3. i.e. one name interchanging with two or several. This is the totally irregular group. Example:
   International congress for applied mechanics. 1-3, 5, 7
   Congrès international de mécanique appliquée. 2-3, 9
   Internationaler Kongress für technische Mechanik. 2-3
   Internationella kongressen för teknisk mekanik. 3
   International congress on theoretical and applied mechanics. 8
   International congress of applied mechanics. 9-11
   International congress of theoretical and applied mechanics. 13
   IUTAM congress. 14

4. i.e. name translated into two or more languages or name with its acronym. Example:
   International symposium on pharmaceutical chemistry. 1962, 2(1968)
   Symposium international sur la chimie pharmaceutique. 1962, 2(1968)

5. i.e. group 4 with change of names. Groups 4 and 5 are the multi-name variations of group 1 and 2. Example:
   International symposium on organometallic chemistry. 3
   Symposium international sur la chimie organométallique. 3
   International conference on organometallic chemistry. 4-5
   Conférence internationale sur la chimie organométallique. 4-5

6. i.e. a) book title in addition to conference name. These book titles are counted for frequency but not further considered in this paper. Frequency, including translations: 69. Example:
Theoretical and applied mechanics. Proceedings of the 14th IUTAM congress.
b) book title with unnamed but numbered congress statement. Frequency: 42. Example:
Electronique quantique. Comptes-rendus de la 3^{e} conférence internationale. - Quantum electronics. Proceedings of the third international congress.
c) book title, or rather monographic series title, as an "elliptic congress name" with number or date. In cataloguing this is universally treated as "vol. 2" etc. of monographs. Frequency: 38. Example:
Lead 62, 65, 68, 71, 74
considered as parallell name to International conference on lead.
1(1962), 2(1965), 3(1968), 4(1971), 5(1974)
As this is a rather recent fashion and controversial in its interpretation, all the examples are listed:
Boron chemistry I, Chemical thermodynamics III, Compaction '73 Crystal growth 1968, 1971, 1974, Glass 1977, Heat transfer 1970, 1974, Heat treatment '76, High energy physics and nuclear structure - 1975, Lead 62, 65, 68, 71, 74, Liquid crystals 2, 3, Liquid metals 1976, Magnetic resonance V, Microwave '75, Ocean 72, 73, 74 (from 1975 discontinued as congress suite and continued as a periodical "Ocean"), Photochemistry IV, V, Photochimie IV, Plasma physics and controlled nuclear fusion research 1971, 1974, 1976, Plutonium 1965, Solid state devices 1971, 1972, 1973, 1974, The solid-vacuum interface IV, Thermionic electrical power generation 1965.
Regrettably "Molecular sieves II" is the fourth conference in the series.

7. With acronyms, only when standing for congress names, not societies as "IFIP congress". Acronym frequencies are listed in Table 2.
